Wildlife Depredation

Safety of flight is a top priority for the 22 Air Refueling Wing (ARW) and wildlife creates various hazards. The United States Air Force has partnered with the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) to mitigate flight safety hazards. Fam Camp fosters an ideal habitat that attracts many wildlife species. Due to the location of Fam Camp, wildlife will cross over the active airfield to reach water, food sources, or shelter. Wildlife harassment and depredation are two methods that are commonly used to shift animals and birds away from the proximity of the airfield. The 22 ARW Flight Safety and the USDA have been granted federal and state permits that authorizes harassment and depredation of wildlife species that interfere with aviation safety.

Please do not be alarmed if you see USDA or 22 ARW Flight Safety personnel around the Fam Camp areas harassing or depredating wildlife. USDA personnel drives a white pick-up truck and will have “USDA” logos on their clothing. Wing Safety will be uniformed members in fluorescent yellow/green vests and will be driving a blue pick-up truck. Harassment and depredation efforts will only be conducted as official business. USDA and 22 ARW Flight Safety will take every precaution to ensure campers and patrons remain safe during these efforts.
